The War Head is our interpretation of an early American blade prized throughout the Frontier for its versatility and usefulness, in its day it was known as a Trade Dag. It had the advantage of adaptability in the sense that you could add handle scales or wrap the tang with rawhide or rope, or lash it to a hardwood stick to make it into a spear, lance or war club.

War Head is made out of 1055 Carbon steel with a tough spring temper and, like the original, sports twin razor sharp edges and lashing notches. Unlike the original, it comes with a green paracord wrapped handle and a sturdy Cordura nylon sheath so you can use and carry it with convenience.

Product parameters:
