This actor's scale helmet is wearable and is completely handcrafted in solid iron with a weathered and distressed finish. It features a genuine leather-lined interior with an individually serialized solid brass plate mounted on the inside back of the helmet to ensure authenticity. The Helm of Isildur is a limited edition of 2000 pieces worldwide and each helmet is presented with a wood display stand adorned with The One Ring inscription and a brass medallion.

HELM MATERIAL: Solid iron, embossed brass decoration, weathered and distressed finish, genuine leather-lined interior and chin strap. DISPLAY: 9-1/2" x 9-3/4" x 6-7/8" wood, burned-edge finish, gold silk screen, brass medallion. Includes a parchment certificate of authenticity.

At the end of the second age of Middle-earth, Narsil's blade was shattered, as Elendil fell during the Last Alliance of Elves and Men in the great battle against Sauron, creating the Shards of Narsil. Isildur, Elendil's son, then used the broken hilt of Narsil to cut the One Ring from Sauron's finger, breaking the bonds of his power, banishing his evil shadow into the darkness.

The armor and helm that Isildur wore in the battle of the Last Alliance of Elves and Men was similar to that of his father Elendil. Like Elendil's, Isildur's helm was more ornate than the standard Numenorean version, and instead of the two large seabird style wings adorning the sides, Isildur's helm bears four smaller crests representing the points on a compass and also features feathered wing styled cheek guards. This authentically detailed helmet is a reproduction of the helmet prominently featured in The Lord of the Rings, The Fellowship of the Ring presented by New Line Cinema. United Cutlery Brands, industry leader in fine movie reproductions, has meticulously recreated the actual prop helmet using the finest grade materials and craftsmanship of the highest quality available. Close attention to detail is a top priority in every piece, right down to the embossed brass decoration that precisely matches the original movie prop.
