This falchion has a sharp, broad, single-edged, wide blade with a gentle curve toward the tip. Steel crossguard shaped into an elegant, almost S-curving quillon on one side, while the other quillon is a simpler, shorter projection. The pommel is a prominent disc shape with a raised center, and the grip between guard and pommel is wrapped with brown leather, accented by a narrow metallic band near the guard. The scabbard is also covered with brown leather, with steel fittings at the throat and a chape at the tip.
